Patient had surgery on back to provide support. After surgery plasma healing is now being used to help with recovery. A coil belt, health bottle and mat were used for this process.

A belt was made of round spiral coils to be worn across chest. No pictures or specifics were provided in this video on how it was made. Coils are not GANS coated in the belt. Belt contains CO2 GANS.

Patient was advised to use the health cup to consume water

36 Coils were made to put in the bed. Both ends are open.

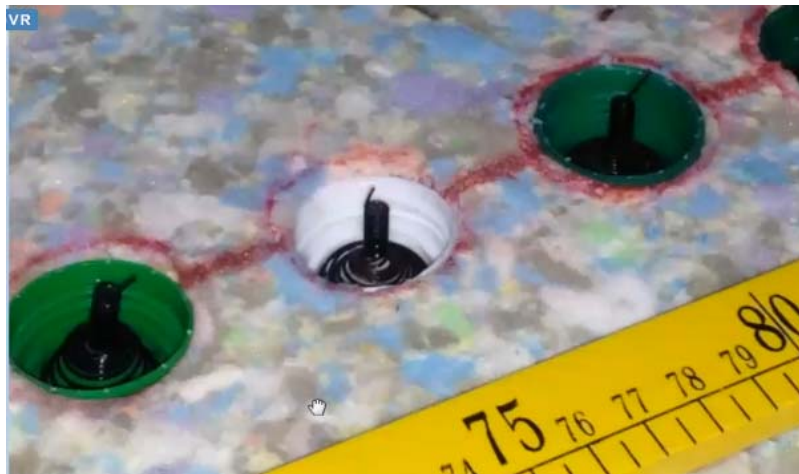

Caustic solution is made up of crushed egg shells mixed with boiling salt water. Solution turns a light purple color. Intention is to affect bone growth with the calcium of the egg shells.

Caustic was sprayed onto coils.

A mat was cut with hole for plastic cups to contain the coils. The material is the same as the matting that goes under carpets.

CO2 GANS patches were used around the coils and taped down with non-metallic duct tape. Foam padding was added on top of coils and then on top of entire mat for comfort. The mat was finally covered with a sheet.

Patient was able to walk again within a week and the pain from the surgery was gone.

Patient felt a shock sensation the night before and he removed the mat thinking he was electrocuted but there is no power running through the coil so he put it back and was fine. This has not been experienced again since. It is believed that this shock was what gave the initial push for healing.

Emergency Case #1:

4 year old girl rushed to hospital for severe case of pneumonia. Patient was unconscious.

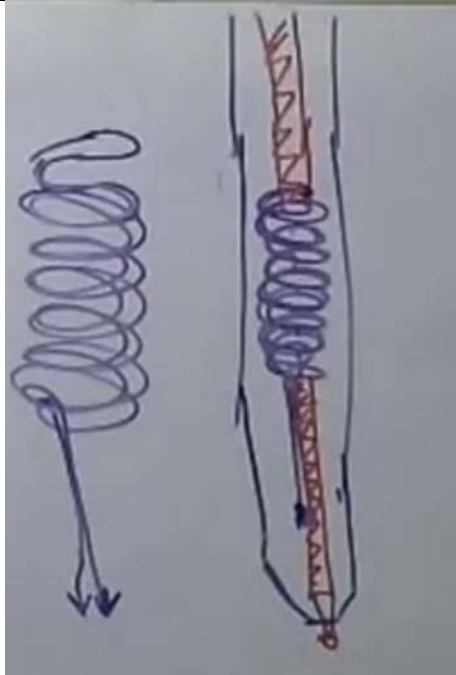

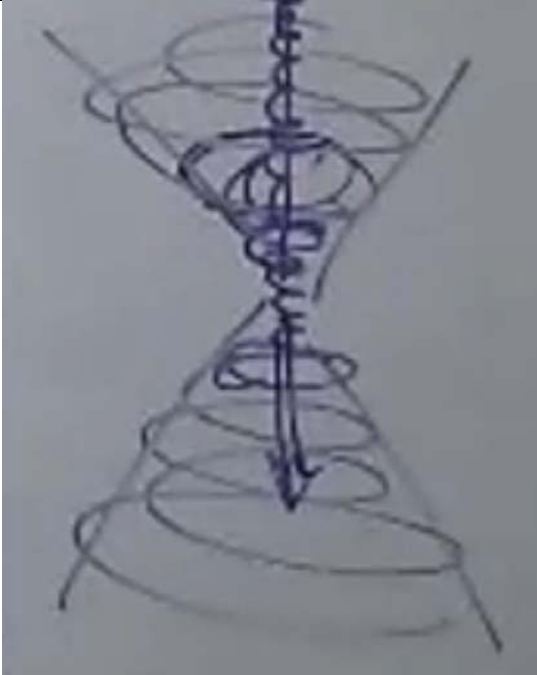

Used large pain pen, vortex shaped coil configuration with ordinary single coil pointing downwards to direct field. Pen was used on patients hand, lung acupuncture point, and CO2 GANS patch on chest. Within 3 minutes patient recovered and became conscious. Oxygen levels were normal and consciousness was restored.

Emergency Case #2:

Patient had a stroke, hand was processed with pain pen. Within 5-7 minutes patient regained consciousness. CO2 GANS patch was given.
