Armen's Special workshop started with Stirling Allan coming on with only 15 minutes to discuss an important question. He was re-assured it would be recorded so to go ahead with his question...

SA: I'm game! My primary question relates to this announcement that was made yesterday – I put a link up in my news to the announcement, did a story about it, and I'm just curious – you guys that were deep into this with Mr. Keshe – I know there's a diversity of takes on how legitimate what he has is, and some people are holding out waiting for real evidence, other people think that the evidence seems to bear out his major claims, and since today is Easter and he made this huge announcement the other day on Good Friday, about being the Messiah – I'm just curious what you guys think about that?

Armen: You know! To start what I will do is present my point and version that you can understand how simple is this technology and then you can judge whatever statement will be made – could you please upload the point that I wanna start with ...

Rick: It seems like we're gonna start now so I'll start up the Livestream and we'll just make it happen right now, right? Just a sec let me make sure everything is working – I wasn't quite ready for this ...

Let me just make an announcement here on the Livestream because we are going Live, a little earlier than expected because we have Stirling Allan here, who is asking a question from Armen there at the Space Ship Institute – woops my microphones off – let me run that through again – this is the Extra Special Workshop with Armen the KS from the SSI and we're starting a bit early because we have SA here who's asking a question but will only be here for a few minutes after the hour, so we're going to launch into it and Stirling if you could maybe re-ask your question and we can get that on the Livestream – go ahead!

SA: Pause – Sorry I had it on mute! OK, yeah the question is – you know the people here on this call have been with or known about Mr. Keshe for quite some time and he made a huge announcement on Good Friday claiming that he is the Messiah and I'm just curious what you people's take is on that since that is not something that happens every day for us. As we hang out with scientists we get all types but that's something that doesn't happen very often so I thought it'd be a good subject for discussion.

Armen: Definitely – I will explain that – if Rick can start with the pictures that I asked I will start to explain my way of understanding, and leave that question to you, all of you, to answer – Rick can you please put the picture of the bone ... hello ...

R: Yes Armen I'll just get that on, just a second here I need to get that up I'm a bit earlier than expected ... OK ... now you want to start with the picture of the bone, correct?

A: Yes – I think you can post that in the message box, that they will download it.

R: OK I think we're ready to go ahead on that one Armen, what would you like to say about that?

A: Look at this simple bone of the animal – its all in a nano state – you see the inside – it's a nano state – you see the bone marrow – that's in a Gans state – this is simple if you know about animal body creation – the same goes in the reactors – a lot of people are asking what's this vacuum in it, which a lot of us are banging our heads with this nonsense, asking ourselves how much vacuum we can create or which vacuum systems are the best? When you vacuum above 9 above 10 you already have a vacuum – you're already given to Hydrogen or an atom to expand – you opening up your fields – a very simple test that all of you done it – testing – putting the copper or other materials inside – you created the same thing – magnetic fields and gravitational fields – you opened it up – you already start the creation yourself – you see that – you do more tests you will understand how they act but believe me they act to whatever your soul, your thoughts, everything you just put on it to open it up!

Life is on any level, it depends what you want to create – look at these pictures at the magnetic channels, it's a Gans state – this is start of the creation – this is your creation, your thoughts, your soul, it's everything in it – so what should I call you. Technicality is very simple how to build a reactor – here is the bone the picture you'll see – then you feed a little bit the source, the Hydrogen – 75% of your arm is hydrogen – what is the source? How simple it is that you can stretch one atom of hydrogen – its in a vacuum.

We started something and its beautiful. you know! It's what I see, what I feel, and when I felt the magnetic fields of the reactors that are already collecting an action because, mine, Marek's, Mr. Keshe's – all of our fields were in those reactors, our thoughts, our wishes – if I could answer your questions I would gladly do that.

Rick: Stirling is that somewhat an answer to your question or would you like to get more ...

SA: What I was hoping to get was to go around the table and have each of you chime in for about one or two minutes to get the bottom line essence of what your take is on Mr. Keshe claiming that he is the Messiah. Some of you may have suspected that, some of you have been on the inside and known that he has believed that for quite some time, for some of you maybe this is new information, I just want to get your response. What I just heard sounded like a lot of science and hardly any of the spiritual take on yay or nay, what you think, spiritual ramifications of that declaration – that's kind of more what I'm looking for.

Vince: Actually I think I heard that specifically from Armen, he was saying that the whole point of this is that he is bringing the creation to us, and if we are part of the creation and we're also bringing creation, aren't we all the Messiahs? Its all inside each one of us, and then it becomes another person, then it becomes another person, there's always gonna be the first person, but after that we're all gonna get to that level.

Armen: Thank you

Rick: That's basically what I believe as well that we are as Dave says co-creators and we may not be at the level of the Messiahs – say – but we are all potentially Messiahs, and we can be creators of our own Universe essentially and through this technology, the technology is only a way of expressing that essentially, because its not about the material things such as a generator that makes power, or a space craft that flies, and so on, it goes deeper than that into the actual fields and the entities involved lets say.

So there's a lot more to it than just creating new nano materials and doing the actual science. In fact when you look at Keshe he's not really a true scientist in the sense of what most scientists would call themselves today where they record everything exactly and they have this repertoire of things they're supposed to do as a scientist and so on – Keshe comes across as looking – well – not quite as your standard type scientist, lets say, he's more funky than that – he's more spur of the moment and able to feel things rather than weigh things lets say.

So he comes from a different place, he comes from a more principled deeper place that could be commonly called spiritual but its definitely not religious – it's a place where things like spirit and energy fields are way more important than the actual material things that end up coming from those fields. So I think he's trying to make us pay attention to the ...aaahhh – call it spiritual realm or the realm of the unmanifest before it becomes stuff. In his books he goes through that so much to describe these fields and talked about Hydrogen being so important – Armen brought that up – where does the Hydrogen come from? Well you could say that it may come from the interaction of these fields, these magnetic forces and so on.

So – that's part of my take on it. I'm not surprised that Keshe calls himself the Messiah because it was obvious to me when I discovered his work years ago that this was really special – it resonated with me – with my level of truth inside I call it, and it resonated strong and it said - Woah! This is some truth in here, and its got to do with more than the physical representation of things that science normally gets into.

So for me I was not surprised that he called himself Messiah because who else would bring new materials and these energy-creating machines and health benefits, and most of all the levity – he brings a certain levity in many ways into the situation and that's an important factor.

All of those things can only happen through global peace so that is another factor that ties into the whole equation and if you think – well how are we going to get through a few hundred years or the proverbial thousand years of peace, if not with this kind of technology that enables us to become creators, but only if we use it for a peaceful means, and that'll be the true challenge for mankind in the next while I think. I'll pass on to someone else...

Armen: Anybody have any questions that I can answer it? Vacuum, nano materials, Gans, what I mean is that I want it to be clear for you all to see the outcome of it.

Rick: I just wanna say that if anybody else they have to add to – to give Stirling something to work on there, they could bring that up now because he only has a couple of minutes here before he has to leave.

Dave: Yeah Stirling's already gone, so that's OK.

Vince: I think we can all put in our two cents for Mr. Allan there and let him know that Mr. Keshe announcing that he is Messiah is of course not a big surprise to a lot of us, but the announcement of what? – What is the Messiah? I like what you wrote there Dave where a Messiah is a saviour or a liberator of a group of people and bringing this technology that is what is happening! It's liberating us from our own material greed!

Dave: Preach it brother!

Everybody: Laugh out loud

Rick Yeah Right!

From here Armen took back over his teaching workshop and led the conversation back into magnetic gravitational fields and how we as the creators of these fields are bringing our souls into the equation and in creating matter are becoming creators. The workshop went on for another two hours for those who are interested in this fascinating merging of spirit and matter,
